ACCESSIBILITY CLAUSE AND PERMISSION TO USE

Abstract

Abstract text goes here. To satisfy the requirements of Library and Archives Canada, the abstract must be no longer than 350 words for a Doctoral thesis and 150 words for a Master's thesis.

 "The abstract must give enough information about the thesis to allow a potential reader to decide whether or not to consult the complete work. The candidate must ensure that the abstract refers to all the elements that would make the thesis worth consulting. The abstract should include important place names and proper nouns because these can be significant key words for electronic retrieval. It should not include graphs, charts, illustrations or tables. The expected content of an abstract varies among disciplines, but all abstracts can be expected to include the following:

> a statement of the research problem or question > an indication of the research method(s) used or theoretical orientation taken > findings or major discoveries made > conclusions and significance.

Keywords

Use Body Text or Normal style for text in this section.

 "At the end of the Abstract should appear a list of keywords. Librarians use these keywords when assigning subject headings and index terms as part of the Cataloguing Record. The candidate, as the person most familiar with the research and its significance, selects the terms that help other scholars get access to his/her work. For example, the following keywords could be used for a thesis studying fuzzy relational modeling:
fuzzy relational modeling, fuzzy simulation, fuzzy c-Means, Centre of Gravity, Centre of Area, Weighted Average of Cluster Centres, Polyline algorithm.

The following could be used to describe a thesis entitled "The Other of Grammatology: Lacan, Derrida, Kristeva," which studies the relationship between psychoanalysis, deconstruction, and feminism as they relate to linguistic representations: Psychoanalysis, Deconstruction, Freud, Derrida, Kristeva, Lacan, Feminism, Reference."

Co-Authorship Statement (where applicable)

Use Body Text or Normal style for text in this section.

 "In the case where a thesis includes papers co-authored by the candidate and others, the thesis must state explicitly who contributed to such work and the nature and extent of this contribution. The Supervisor(s) must attest to the accuracy of such statements about co-authorship at the Thesis Examination."

Acknowledgments (if any)

Use Body Text or Normal style for text in this section.

"The acknowledgments note help received from the Supervisor(s), staff, co-authors and co-researchers, fellow students, technicians or others in the collection of materials or data, the design and construction of apparatus, the analysis of data, and the writing of the thesis."

Table of Contents

The Table of Contents (TOC) can be inserted automatically here if you have used the appropriate styles for section, chapter titles, and for subheadings. In Word, you can check what will appear in the TOC by viewing in "Outline" mode, suppressing body text.

 "The table of contents provides a listing of the main elements in the thesis. In the rare case where the thesis requires more than one volume, each volume must have its own table of contents."

References or Bibliography (if any)

Use the "biblio" style to format references.

Appendices (if any)

Use Body Text or Normal style for text in this section.

The purpose of an appendix is to include in the thesis supporting material that is not an essential part of the text itself. For example, in a thesis that involves a survey, letters of information to subjects, questionnaires, or other research instruments may appear in an appendix. In a thesis that analyzes a rare or inaccessible text, that text may be included in an appendix. An appendix also may include raw data on which analysis has been performed, either in print or electronic format.
